Fund Manager's Report

During the month, the Fund fell 0.79% in MYR terms, outperforming the benchmark by 0.82%. Year to date, the Fund is outperforming the index by 0.86%.

The MSCI AC Asia Pacific ex Japan Index declined another 3.0% in November in USD terms. The decline was led by profit taking in technology, industrials, Korea and Taiwan stocks. Early-month weakness of the stock market was impacted by worries of no interest rate cut by the US Fed in December but was followed by a late-November rebound, driven by rising expectations of a U.S. Federal Reserve rate cut. Furthermore, AI and other related stocks retreated in November as some investors took profit after an extended run up in stock prices in the previous few months. Investors also questioned the returns on the ever-rising capacity expenditure of the cloud service providers on AI infrastructure. However, NVIDIA's strong October quarter results and bullish guidance reinforce the region's pivotal role in the global AI supply chain.

Economic weakness was a contributing factor to the decline in China's stock market in November. The Manufacturing and Non-Manufacturing PMI were 49.2 and 49.5 respectively for the month of November for China. Other notable data were the weaker than expected Total Social Financing and weak property sales. Overall, factors such as stable GDP growth in Asia, coupled with rate cut cycle and weaker USD should be supportive for Asian markets. Moreover, valuation is reasonable, with earnings growth at mid teens in 2026. We have continued to chip away at exposures in areas where valuation and risk-reward dynamics have become less compelling. The portfolio focuses on companies demonstrating market leadership, durable competitive advantages, strong free cashflows generation and/or attractive dividend yields. We remain constructive on financials, industrials, alongside technology leaders in internet platforms and semiconductors. Risks would be (1) sticky inflation, (2) global recession, and (3) rising geopolitical risks.

In Malaysia, the FBM100 Index fell 0.5% in MYR terms during the month. Although traditionally November has been a lackluster month for MY equities, the lack of near-term catalyst and nervousness surrounding domestic politics, coupled with ROI harvesting activities, kept overall sentiment weak. This was despite overwhelming anticipation of a 25bps cut in the upcoming FOMC meeting in Dec. Financials and Property posted strong gains during the month, while Utilities and Healthcare languished the most. Within the broader market, Tech corrected sharply from the previous month's rally.

We remain constructive on sectors that stand to gain from the NETR, including Utilities, Construction, and Property. We are also optimistic about Financials and select Consumer names given the strong investment momentum in Malaysia. We also like sectors that benefit from the stronger Ringgit. Key risks are the derailment of Malaysia's macroeconomic recovery and corporate earnings growth due to the larger-than-expected impact of rising inflation, slower global economic growth, and heightened geopolitical risks.

^Based on the fund's portfolio returns as at 15 November 2025, the Volatility Factor (VF) for this fund is 10.13 and is classified as "Moderate" (source: FIMM). The VF means there is a possibility for the fund in generating an upside return or downside return around this VF. The Volatility Class (VC) is assigned by FIMM based on quintile ranks of VF for qualified funds. VF is subject to monthly revision and VC will be revised every six months. The fund's portfolio may have changed since this date and there is no guarantee that the fund will continue to have the same VF or VC in the future. Presently, only funds launched in the market for at least 36 months will display the VF and its VC.
